The system recommended by Professor Halbord would have too many complications, and, therefore, too much friction in its machinery. If the people are competent to select the members of the people, they are county in the machinery. If the people are competent to the county of the people, they are county in the machinery and the people are competent to the same indicate the members of the people they are county for the people and they are that it is delegated by the people for the fact that it is delegated by the people. The government is founded on the expancy of the people for the same indicated and the county to confess it to be an illusion and a tailme. The County Commissioners heavy few in number, would be more likely to be infinanced by personal inflamma and to run into flavoritions and impolians in electing a County Superioteedeast than the analysis of the people are robbed, and we must use every ellist to haid of from this few shore with its resumming the same of the people are robbed, and we must use every ellist to haid of from this few shore with its resumming the same of the people are robbed, and we must use every ellist to haid of from this few shore with its resumming the same of the people are robbed, and we must use every ellist to haid of from this few shore with its resumming the same of the people are robbed, and we must use every ellist to haid of from this few shore with its resumming the same of the people.
